SUEZ signs power supply agreements with Siam Cement in Thailand

SUEZ Energy International's subsidiary Glow Energy, the leading private power generator in Thailand, has signed two major power supply agreements for a period of 20 years with petrochemical companies affiliated to the Siam Cement Group, based in the Map Ta Phut industrial estate. The contracts represent an approximate value of USD 500-600 million.

In recent years, petrochemical industries in the Map Ta Phut estate have experienced significant growth, creating additional demand for energy. Sales to industrial customers in the estate have been very successful. Since 2005, Glow Energy has secured contracts totaling 120-140 MW of electricity and 30 tons per hour of steam, with supply starting gradually between now and 2010.

In order to meet its new contracts, Glow Energy plans to build additional generation capacity.

Dirk Beeuwsaert, CEO of SUEZ Energy International, stated: "Glow Energy's track record and operational expertise in supplying stable and reliable energy to petrochemical companies was one of the key reasons why it was chosen. The power supply agreements with Siam Cement confirm SUEZ as partner of choice in the energy business in Thailand."

Glow Energy

Glow Energy group is a major energy player in Thailand and since April 2005 listed on the stock exchange of Thailand. Its combined installed capacity includes 1,709 MW of electricity and 968 tons of steam per hour. In 2005 the Group posted consolidated net earnings of 4,300 million Baht on 28,596 million Baht consolidated revenues.
